“ I still cant believe Im living in a world without you in it. My heart aches for you everyday. When the baby boys are asleep and the house is quiet sometimes I feel like I can hear your voice. I watched some old home movies today. I wished I could climb inside and kiss you on your forehead one last time. The boys dont understand why mommy cries so I force a smile and think of our last day together back in November. Im so sorry that I wasnt there for you with you in the end but my dad tells me that no one really dies as long as you keep talking about them. Bishop and Bronson will know you Papa. I love you. I miss you. I dont know what to do without you... who am I going to call next time I crash my car?
