“ My dear Baba: I want to thank you for giving birth to my dear mother. You meant the world to her. And now you are reunited. What a party you two must be having! I am so blessed to have been a part of your life. And Im so happy that I inherited your smart-aleck gene! Smiles! You taught me to always keep a sense of humor - especially when the going got tough! Remember when you made the banana milkshakes and forgot to put the lid on the blender? Haha! Good times! I love you! Love (Your snowflake) Lori

“ Five years ago I wrote a note to my mom thanking her for some of the many things she had done for me. Here is the short list:
1.special birthday dinners (we got to pick the menu) 2.special birthday cakes (especially the one with the Beatles on top since I was a Beatlemaniac)3.buying me all four Beatle dolls (nobody I knew got all four of them!)4.taking me to the Schwinn bicycle shop for my first full-size bike and letting me pick out any one I wanted! 5. coming to my defense whenever I was sent to the principals office for my short skirts 6. never discouraging me about my tastes in music (& even liking some of it). 7. waking me up in the middle of the night---the last night before I left home to start my own lifes journeyto hug me while she cried.

“ I love you very much Baba...I have always liked and been very proud to have been named after you. I remember the summer vacations with you and Dida and how every morning Lori and I would wake up to the wonderful aroma of your homemade bread. I miss you.
