“ Roy was the king of more than one City Giant of the industry art & culture. His kindness and his overwhelming presence will be missed within the tattoo community and its culture. He pioneered and paved the ways for so many. Many looked up to him some were inspired to be like him he certainly was one to pattern themselves after who wanted to find dedication within this trade and culture. I will be one who keeps the man and memories alive with true tales of his persona until my torch burns out. I know hes on his own throne among the thrones of other masters who passed before him. If those tattooers are arm wrestling for who puts the king of kings on the thigh of the Lord as written in the Bible Royboy will certainly win out. I say this with both sympathy and respect. He could easily win hearts and minds with either his kindly kindness or a deep stare. A philosopher wrote Mankind is the only animal that refuses to accept what it is Royboy lived loved laughed and behaved as the animal tiger that he knew he was. Condolences to the Family and prayers for the strength to cope that comes from within. We are one big Family and this Family of so many morn with you over a torch that no one person could ever put out a torch that had to burn out in its own time and by that bearers own will.
